RRC0042 Protecting customers affected by family violence – Tango Energy submission

Tango Energy thanks the Australian Energy Regulator (AER) for the opportunity to comment on the proposed rule change by Red Energy and Lumo Energy relating to protecting customers affected family violence, with the consultation paper published on 18 November 2021.

Tango Energy is the wholly owned subsidiary retail arm of Pacific Hydro Australia (PHA). PHA was founded in 1992, and is a leading owner, operator and developer of renewable energy assets. It operates a high quality, diversified portfolio of wind, hydro and solar assets with an installed capacity of 665 MW; it also has a development pipeline of substantial projects totaling over 1100 MW of potential capacity, as well as over 300 MW of energy storage solutions.

We are a relatively new and growing retailer with approximately 150,000 small and large customers as of February 2022. While our customer base is predominantly in Victoria, Tango Energy also recently started selling to small customers in New South Wales, Queensland, and South Australia and expects to grow our presence in those jurisdictions.

Please see the below outlining our responses to the submission questions. If you would like to discuss this submission in detail, please contact me at the details provided with the submission.

Yours sincerely,

Matthew Frost Assurance and Compliance Analyst Tango Energy Pty Ltd

CHAPTER 1 – VIEWS ON THE RULE CHANGE PROPOSAL

| What are your views onthe effectiveness of thechanges proposed byRed and Lumo inprotecting customersaffected by familyviolence? | Tango Energy considers that family violence is a complex societal issue that shouldideally be handled by appropriately trained professionals. Notwithstanding this, TangoEnergy appreciates the sentiment and policy rationale underpinning the changesproposed by Red and Lumo in relation to introducing provisions that increaseprotections for customers affected by family violence. Tango Energy considers thatcustomers who are affected by family violence deserve consistent protections acrossall states, and this proposed rule change would facilitate greater regulatoryconsistency with Victoria. The proposed rule change would also provide retailers withcertainty around their requirements under the NECF and the responsibilities they havewhen dealing and identifying customers affected by family violence.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| What improvements andchallenges should theCommission consider?                                                                                  | Tango Energy asks that the AEMC considers the requirement of mandatory family violence training for retailer staff as part of this rule change. The current requirements under the Victorian Energy Retail Code of Practice require training to be provided to certain retail staff members as well as requirements as to what must be addressed in the training. The rule change proposed by Red and Lumo omits this requirement. Removing this requirement could result in retailers not giving proper training to their staff in relation to how to identify and deal with family violence-affected customers. Inadequate training could result an inadvertent perpetuation of emotional distress for affected customers due to the sensitivities surrounding family violence. The Royal Commission into Family Violence recommended comprehensive ongoing training for customer service staff to help identify customers experiencing family violence. The Commission's findings concluded that affected customers trying to access support were often confronted with a lack of understanding from customer-facing staff which ultimately resulted in a poor experience for the affected customer. |
|                                                                                                                                                         | with this in mind, Tango Energy recommends that any mandatory training obligationbe expressed in the form of broad guiding principles rather than a listed set of trainingrequirements to provide retailers with greater flexibility to ensure their staff have theknowledge to handle customers affected by family violence with due sensitivity andrespect.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |

Question 1– Red and Lumo's rule change request

CHAPTER 2 – ADDITIONAL COMPONENTS THAT COULD BE INCLUDED IN THE RULE

Question 2 – Additional matters

| Are there matters youwould like to seeaddressed in the NationalEnergy Retail Rulesbeyond those consideredin the proposed rule?These could be issues,protections orrequirements. Forinstance, regarding theVictorian approach,compliance andenforcement, or ways to | Tango Energy considers that regulatory consistency with the Victorian framework isimportant to reduce potential implementation costs. Any imposition of additionalobligations outside of those already in place in Victoria may not only result in furthercosts for energy retailers, but may also require further consultation to understandtheir application and effect on the energy sector. |

| Could a broader cross-sector approacheffectively addressfinancial abuse in theenergy sector?What would be its keyaspects?                                                                                                                                                                               | Tango Energy would caution against the implementation of any broad cross-sectorapproach due to the potential difficulty in aligning approaches across different sectors.Various sectors have implemented family violence protection frameworks, andimplementation of any cross-sector approach would require industries to be aligned inboth their approaches and their protections. This would require substantialconsideration around how the individual industries operate and how uniformobligations can be implemented without creating operational complexities. If a cross-sector approach was to be considered, Tango Energy would strongly encourageextensive consultation be conducted with energy retailers in order to assess whetherthe approach would provide an overall benefit to customers affected by familyviolence. |
| What existingjurisdictional provisionsshould the Commissiontake into account for thisrule change?                                                                                                                                                                                                               | As previously mentioned, Tango Energy recommends that the AEMC focuses onensuring that the current proposed rule change is effective in promoting improvedoutcomes for those affected by family violence before considering any expansions ormodifications beyond the requirements that are currently in place in Victoria.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
